As AI becomes a dominant topic in revenue cycle conversations, practice owners and billing professionals are struggling to separate genuine innovation from vendor hype. This candid, vendor-neutral session cuts through the noise to reveal where AI is genuinely improving collections, coding accuracy and workflows — and where significant gaps remain.

"AI has enormous potential to transform how healthcare organizations manage their revenue cycles, but the reality is more nuanced than the headlines suggest," said Kevin Chmura, CEO of Panacea Healthcare Solutions. "This webinar gives practice leaders the honest, practical perspective they need to make smart decisions — not just about technology, but about protecting their revenue. I encourage every billing director, practice owner and RCM professional to attend."

What attendees will learn:

- Where AI is improving collections, coding and RCM workflows today
- The biggest gaps AI still cannot solve — and why human expertise remains essential
- Common pitfalls practices face when adopting AI-driven RCM tools
- Real-world examples of what's working and what's quietly failing
- What to expect from AI in the next two to five years and how to prepare now

The webinar is designed for practice owners, office managers, billing directors, revenue cycle managers and healthcare executives seeking a practical, unbiased view of AI in medical billing. Attendees who cannot join live may register to receive the on-demand recording.
